Background: The Real Estate Commission has received enough comments over the last couple of years concerning designated brokers' professionalism and competency to prompt the commission to explore possible solutions. We are in agreement that the ultimate responsibility falls on the shoulders of the designated brokers and that was the catalyst for considering the creation of a "core" class specifically for DB's. Core may not end up being the name of whatever we might come up with, but it lends itself for the present as a description and possible partial solution.

George Pilant, Commissioner
